

Adverse Media Monitoring Report

2024-06-11

Entity information

Entity ID	Type	Name	Year of birth	Citizenship	Reside
—	Individual	Tom Brady	1977	United States	—, Un

✔ False Positive

Reviewer Comment

No comment provided.

Batch ID	Transaction ID	Media Provider
f5df95c8-d2f5-4f8e-946e-96daba6caaaa	50e7d738-d775-4b9d-945d-0434111ae789	Google

Overview of search results - 10

New Jersey Man Sentenced to 3 Years in Prison for Fraudulently Obtaining and Selling Three Tom Brady Super Bowl Rings

August 29, 2022 · Google · False Positive (Score 0.71) justice.gov

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

New Jersey Man Sentenced to 3 Years in Prison for Fraudulently Obtaining and Selling Three Tom Brady Super Bowl Rings
... SANTA ANA, California – A New Jersey man was sentenced today to 36 months in federal prison for posing as a former player for the New England Patriots family versions of the team's 2016 Super Bowl championship ring – supposedly as gifts to relatives of quarterback Tom Brady – one of which was sold at auction for r ... Spina admitted in his plea agreement that he defrauded the Orange County ring broker when he falsely claimed that the rings "were ordered for Tom Brady c for select family members." Spina also admitted that he defrauded this victim in relation to three wire transfers for the deposit on the family rings ...

Tom Brady and Larry David among those accused of defrauding investors in FTX collapse

Google · False Positive (Score 0.67) cbsnews.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

Tom Brady and Larry David among those accused of defrauding investors in FTX collapse
... Former FTX Trading CEO Sam Bankman-Fried, NFL quarterback Tom Brady, supermodel Gisele Bundchen and comedian Larry David are among a celebrity-stud defrauding investors who lost money in the cryptocurrency exchange's sudden collapse ... "It is still very difficult to comprehend that just one company defrauded more than $11 billion dollars from consumers, all from our backyard here in Miami," Adam M class action, said in an email ...

Tom Brady, Steph Curry and other celebrities face Texas investigation for endorsements of bankrupt crypto firm

November 22, 2022 · Google · False Positive (Score 0.66) texastribune.org

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

Tom Brady, Steph Curry and other celebrities face Texas investigation for endorsements of bankrupt crypto firm
... Texas is investigating celebrities who had endorsed FTX, the now bankrupt cryptocurrency firm, for potentially violating state securities laws ...

... And promotions of FTX by celebrities such as the Golden State Warriors' Steph Curry and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' Tom Brady are now part of this broadened Bloomberg News and confirmed by The Texas Tribune ...

Tom Brady's stolen Super Bowl jersey found in possession of international media member - ESPN

Google · False Positive (Score 0.65) espn.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

Tom Brady's stolen Super Bowl jersey found in possession of international media member - ESPN

... Houston Police Chief Art Acevedo breaks down the process that led to Tom Brady's missing Super Bowl jerseys being recovered in Mexico. (0:49) ...

... Tom Brady 's stolen jersey from this year's Super Bowl has been recovered after being found in the possession of a member of the international media, according t

Tom Brady Roaster Says 'They Told Us No Jokes About Happy Endings' and Robert Kraft, Then Jeff Ross Didn't Listen: Brady's Anger Was '100% R

May 9, 2024 · Google · False Positive (Score 0.52) variety.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

Tom Brady Roaster Says 'They Told Us No Jokes About Happy Endings' and Robert Kraft, Then Jeff Ross Didn't Listen: Bra Real'

... Comedian Andrew Schulz revealed on the "Flagrant" interview series that he was instructed not to make jokes at Netflix 's Tom Brady roast related to Robert Kraft's prostitution in a Florida massage parlor. Charges against Kraft were dropped the following year. When Kraft's attendance was confirmed at the event, roasters were a about "happy endings" in relation to the Patriots owners ...

... Schulz agreed to Brady's alleged demand, mainly because Kraft was not the one getting roasted and he was also not even sitting on the stage. It was fellow roast massage joke during the live event, which infamously led to Brady getting up from his seat and telling Ross: "Don't say that shit again." ...

NFL strips Miami Dolphins of 2023 first-round pick, fines Stephen Ross \$1.5M for tampering with Tom Brady, Sean Payton - ESPN

Google · False Positive (Score 0.50) espn.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

NFL strips Miami Dolphins of 2023 first-round pick, fines Stephen Ross $1.5M for tampering with Tom Brady, Sean Payton

... Following a six-month investigation, the league found the Dolphins -- primarily team owner Stephen Ross and vice chairman/limited partner Bruce Beal -- violated t occasions from 2019 to 2022 in conversations with quarterback Tom Brady and the agent for then- New Orleans Saints coach Sean Payton ...

... Beal was fined $500,000 and isn't permitted to attend any league meetings for the rest of the 2022 season ...

Official explains unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on Tom Brady: 'He got in my face ... and used abusive language'

Google · False Positive (Score 0.45) nfl.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

Official explains unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on Tom Brady: 'He got in my face ... and used abusive language'

... Tom Brady won't be playing in another Super Bowl in February, and the end of his 22nd professional season didn't arrive without frustration ...

... Brady turned toward referee Shawn Hochuli to voice his displeasure with a lack of a roughing the passer after being hit by Miller, drawing a flag -- just not for the re

Tom Brady pushed FTX, then the crypto firm failed. Should he pay ...

December 14, 2022 · Google · False Positive washingtonpost.com

Tom Brady pushed FTX, then the crypto firm failed. Should he pay ...

Dec 14, 2022 ... Tom Brady pushed crypto to his fans. This lawyer ... Tom Brady ... A jury convicted FTX co-founder Sam Bankman-Fried of fraud, conspiracy and m

FTX Committed No Crime Paying Tom Brady And Others Millions ...

Google · False Positive forbes.com

FTX Committed No Crime Paying Tom Brady And Others Millions ...

Oct 4, 2023 ... Tom Brady—as Bankman-Frieds attorney legal team ... Tom Brady became an ... Bankman-Fried is being tried for seven criminal counts, including c

Tom Brady, Steph Curry under investigation in Texas for FTX ...

November 22, 2022 · Google · False Positive thehill.com

Tom Brady, Steph Curry under investigation in Texas for FTX ...

Nov 22, 2022 ... Famed NFL quarterback Tom Brady and NBA star Steph Curry are among a group of celebrities under investigation by a Texas regulator for possible

Article details

New Jersey Man Sentenced to 3 Years in Prison for Fraudulently Obtaining and Selling Three Tom Brady Super Bowl Rings

August 29, 2022 · Google · False Positive (Score 0.71) justice.gov

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

sentenced defrauded theft fraudulently authorized investigated prosecuted victim wire fraud crimes defendar

New Jersey Man Sentenced to 3 Years in Prison for Fraudulently Obtainin Three Tom Brady Super Bowl Rings

SANTA ANA, California – A New Jersey man was sentenced today to 36 months in federal prison for posing as a former player for the New England Patriots, w family versions of the team's 2016 Super Bowl championship ring – supposedly as gifts to relatives of quarterback Tom Brady – one of which was sold at auction for r Scott V. Spina Jr., 25, of Roseland, New Jersey, was sentenced by United States District Judge David O. Carter, who also ordered Spina to pay $63,000 in rest player who sold him his Super Bowl ring and other memorabilia.

On February 1, Spina pleaded guilty to one count of mail fraud, three counts of wire fraud and one count of aggravated identity theft.

The scheme began in 2017, when Spina purchased a Super Bowl LI ring awarded to a Patriots player who subsequently left the team. Spina, who bilked the for with at least one bad check, sold the ring soon after for $63,000 to a well-known broker of championship rings.

When Spina obtained the player ring, he also received the information that allowed the former player to purchase Super Bowl rings for family and friends that ar rings.

"Spina then called the Ring Company, fraudulently identified himself as [the former player], and started ordering three family and friend Super Bowl LI rings with each one, which he falsely represented were gifts for the baby of quarterback Tom Brady," according to court documents. "The rings were at no time authorized by Tc intended to obtain the three rings by fraud and to sell them at a substantial profit."

Spina entered into an agreement with the Orange County man who purchased the player's Super Bowl ring to sell him the three family rings that Spina now clai nephews. After agreeing to buy the three rings for $81,500 – nearly three times what Spina paid for the rings – the buyer started to believe that Brady did not have ne from the deal.

The same day that the buyer tried to back out, and the same day that Spina received the rings in November 2017, Spina immediately sold them to an auction h auction in February 2018, one of the family rings was sold for $337,219.

Spina admitted in his plea agreement that he defrauded the Orange County ring broker when he falsely claimed that the rings "were ordered for Tom Brady dire select family members." Spina also admitted that he defrauded this victim in relation to three wire transfers for the deposit on the family rings. Spina further admitted h posed as the former Patriot to purchase the rings.

The FBI's Art Crime Team investigated this matter.

Assistant United States Attorney Erik M. Silber of the Environmental and Community Safety Crimes Section prosecuted this case.

Tom Brady and Larry David among those accused of defrauding investors in FTX collapse

Google · False Positive (Score 0.67) cbsnews.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

bankruptcy collapse complaint defrauding class action alleged alleges damages defendants defrauded illegal prosecutor protection violations

Tom Brady and Larry David among those accused of defrauding investors in crypto exchange collapse

Former FTX Trading CEO Sam Bankman-Fried, NFL quarterback Tom Brady, supermodel Gisele Bündchen and comedian Larry David are among a celebrity-studded list of investors who lost money in the cryptocurrency exchange's sudden collapse.

A proposed class-action filed in federal court in Florida late Tuesday names those four, along with other athletes and entertainers, as defendants in the case. All prominent crypto trading platform exchanges before it declared bankruptcy on November 11, with the company now under investigation for possible securities violations. "It is still very difficult to comprehend that just one company defrauded more than $11 billion dollars from consumers, all from our backyard here in Miami," Adam Moskowitz, said in an email. The suit seeks unspecified damages and is the first filed against Bankman-Fried and his companies since FTX filed for bankruptcy protection. As part of a $20 million ad campaign, Brady and Bündchen in 2021 filmed a commercial called "FTX. You In?" showing them telling acquaintances to join the FTX platform. The ad was filed in Miami on behalf of Oklahoma resident Edwin Garrison and seeking to represent "thousands, if not millions, of consumers nationwide."

That involves U.S. investors who enrolled in yield-bearing FTX crypto accounts, which the suit alleges created unregistered securities that are illegal in Florida and the suit contends FTX deployed celebrities to tout the exchange and route them into a Ponzi scheme.

David, the creator of "Seinfeld" and "Curb Your Enthusiasm," appeared in an ad for FTX entitled "Don't Miss Out on Crypto," which aired during the 2022 Super Bowl. The commercial David has appeared in, and showed him being skeptical of historical inventions like the wheel, the light bulb and of course FTX.

Other current and former athletes named in the suit are NBA star Stephen Curry; NFL quarterback William Trevor Lawrence; baseball player Shohei Ohtani; tennis player and broadcaster and former basketball player Shaquille O'Neal. Kevin O'Leary, a host of "Shark Tank," is also named in the complaint, which was filed Nov. 15 in the Southern District of Florida. The exchange shuffled customer money between affiliated entities, using new investor funds and loans to pay interest to the old ones in an attempt "to maintain the appearance of legitimacy," the suit alleged, adding that FTX used public figures to give the operation an air of credibility.

Former federal prosecutor explains FTX fallout 08:10

"FTX were geniuses at public relations and marketing, and knew that such a massive Ponzi scheme — larger than the Madoff scheme — could only be successful with the most famous, respected, and beloved celebrities and influencers in the world," he said.

FTX did not reply to a request for comment.

FTX's creditors will be first in line to get whatever assets a bankruptcy judge deems appropriate to distribute as the company seeks to restructure as part of its Chapter 11 bankruptcy. The Bahamas-based company, which had raised some $2 billion in venture capital, come next.

That means FTX account holders, who used the platform to trade bitcoin, ethereum and other digital currencies, may have to wait years to get their money back — if they can. More on this story: In:

Bankruptcy

Cryptocurrency

FTX

Chapter 11 Bankruptcy

Kate Gibson

Kate Gibson is a reporter for CBS MoneyWatch in New York, where she covers business and consumer finance.

Tom Brady, Steph Curry and other celebrities face Texas investigation for endorsements of bankrupt crypto firm

November 22, 2022 - Google - False Positive (Score 0.66) texastribune.org

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

bankrupt bankruptcy lawsuit allegations alleges class action collapse investigated investigating investigations violating

Tom Brady, Steph Curry and other celebrities face Texas investigation for endorsements of bankrupt crypto firm

Sign up for The Brief, our daily newsletter that keeps readers up to speed on the most essential Texas news.

Texas is investigating celebrities who had endorsed FTX, the now bankrupt cryptocurrency firm, for potentially violating state securities laws.

The Texas State Securities Board started looking into FTX's operations last month over whether the exchange's yield-bearing crypto accounts were providing residents with a return on investment. Since the company's collapse on Nov. 11, the board has significantly expanded its probe to examine the impact of this multibillion-dollar bankruptcy.

And promotions of FTX by celebrities such as the Golden State Warriors' Steph Curry and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' Tom Brady are now part of this broadened view reported by Bloomberg News and confirmed by The Texas Tribune.

It also comes amid a class-action lawsuit filed in Florida against Curry, Brady and other celebrities — mostly high-profile athletes — which alleges that FTX had used a scheme designed to take advantage of “unsophisticated investors.” It also names FTX’s former CEO Sam Bankman-Fried.

“Anyone who renders investment advice in Texas typically needs to be registered and they typically have to truthfully disclose all known material facts,” said Joe Rotunda, enforcement director. “In Texas, there is not a different system of justice or regulation for people who are celebrities.”

It’s currently unclear if any prominent Texan would be investigated, but Rotunda said his team is still compiling a list of relevant parties based on recent court filings by the SEC and the class-action lawsuit. In particular, it will be looking at what the promoters disclosed, how they were compensated and how their promotions were scripted. “It’s important from a securities regulation standpoint, and from a bankruptcy standpoint, to determine the ways FTX was encouraging clients and Texans to use FTX. He added that his team will also have to consider how the relevant law applies in this situation, since it was established via a 1985 case involving an investment and fund distributed via fax.

“That’s a far cry from social media and broadcast advertisements, let alone tokens and blockchains, right?” Rotunda said.

Curry, Brady and FTX did not respond to the Tribune’s requests for comment.

They are not the first celebrities to have been scrutinized or penalized for promoting crypto. Last month, Kim Kardashian agreed to pay the Securities and Exchange Commission regulator, $1.26 million to settle allegations that she had hyped a crypto token on Instagram without informing the public that she received $250,000 for the post.

Ultimately, Rotunda said the scrutiny of celebrity endorsement is not his top priority, but the issue remains on his radar as his FTX inquiry continues. Beyond Texas, there are numerous other state, federal and international investigations.

“Right now, we’re trying to figure out how a $32 billion company went to zero almost overnight,” he said.

Tom Brady's stolen Super Bowl jersey found in possession of international media member - ESPN

Google · False Positive (Score 0.65) espn.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

authorities

law enforcement alleged

stolen

felony

resignation

resigned

settled

suspect

theft

offenders

c

Tom Brady's stolen Super Bowl jersey found in possession of international media member - ESPN

play

Houston police chief explains Brady jersey recovery (0:49)

Houston Police Chief Art Acevedo breaks down the process that led to Tom Brady's missing Super Bowl jerseys being recovered in Mexico. (0:49)

Mar 20, 2017, 09:19 AM ET

Tom Brady's stolen jersey from this year's Super Bowl has been recovered after being found in the possession of a member of the international media, according to the league announced Monday that the New England Patriots quarterback's game-worn jersey from Super Bowl LI and another jersey, missing from Super Bowl XLII investigation led by the FBI.

The jerseys were found in Mexico and currently are being authenticated by authorities, Houston Police Chief Art Acevedo said.

Authorities recovered two Tom Brady jerseys, including this one, which he wore in Super Bowl XLIX, which was played on grass in Glendale, Arizona. Mexican Attorney General Arturo Escobar, who is the Mexican Editorial Organization (OEM), a major newspaper publishing company, has identified the man allegedly involved in the case as Martin Mauricio Ortega, a former newspaper, Diario La Prensa, until he resigned last Tuesday.

OEM announced in a statement Monday that it accepted Ortega's resignation, citing his previous mentions of family health issues, and said it had no previous knowledge of the case.

A Denver Broncos helmet, believed to belong to star pass-rusher Von Miller, from Super Bowl 50, also was recovered with the two Brady jerseys, sources confirmed currently are trying to authenticate the helmet.

"I am happy my jerseys from SB 49 and SB 51 have been recovered, and I want to thank all of the law enforcement agencies involved. I know they worked hard on this and it is very much appreciated. Hopefully when I get the jerseys back I can make something very positive come from this experience." Tom Brady

A law enforcement source told ESPN that authorities used footage from Fox, which showed Ortega entering the locker room and, with his back to the camera, reaching for a jersey into a black plastic bag and leaving.

Authorities went over approximately 20,000 credentials, and eventually settled on Ortega as a person of interest, leading to Monday's announcement. A source also told ESPN that stickers inside the helmet -- one each for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps -- which led them to believe it belonged to Miller.

"I am happy my jerseys from SB 49 and SB 51 have been recovered, and I want to thank all of the law enforcement agencies involved. I know they worked hard on this and it is very much appreciated. Hopefully when I get the jerseys back I can make something very positive come from this experience," Brady said in a statement released via his agent, Acevedo noted during a news conference Monday that the jerseys are in the possession of the FBI in Boston, and law enforcement was working to authenticate them. Acevedo mentioned a "suspect" in the case but did not say whether anyone was in police custody. He also tweeted about the recovery of the jerseys.

Proud @houstonpolice Major Offenders Division traced Brady Jersey to Mexico & it has been recovered with help of FBI & Mexican authorities.

— Chief Art Acevedo (@ArtAcevedo) March 20, 2017

"Through the cooperation of the NFL and New England Patriots' security teams, the FBI and other law enforcement authorities, the Super Bowl LI jersey worn last month was recovered," the NFL said in its statement. "Also retrieved during the ongoing investigation was the jersey Brady wore in the Patriots' victory in Super Bowl XLIX again: "The items were found in the possession of a credentialed member of the international media. Due to the ongoing investigation, we would refer any additional questions to the FBI. Following the Patriots' 34-28 victory over the Atlanta Falcons in Super Bowl LI, Brady immediately realized his jersey had been taken from a bag he had put it in in the locker room. "It's unfortunate, because that's a nice piece of memorabilia," Brady told the media a day later. "If it shows up on eBay or something, somebody let me know. I'll try to get some pretty special ones to keep. But what can you do? I'll take the ring. That's good enough for me."

A week later, Patriots owner Robert Kraft, on the Fox Business Network, compared taking the Brady jersey to "taking a great Chagall or Picasso."

In its report, the Houston Police assigned a value of $500,000 to the jersey, the same number that sports auctioneer Ken Goldin, who has sold game-used Brady jerseys, has assigned. Game-used Brady jerseys from regular-season games have been sold in the $50,000 range.

The Houston police classified the alleged theft of Brady's Super Bowl LI jersey as a first-degree felony. The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Tom Brady Roaster Says 'They Told Us No Jokes About Happy Endings' and Robert Kraft, Then Jeff Ross Didn't Listen: Brady Real'

May 9, 2024 - Google - False Positive (Score 0.52) variety.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

alleged arrest resign

Tom Brady Roaster Says 'They Told Us No Jokes About Happy Endings' ar Kraft, Then Jeff Ross Didn't Listen: Brady's Anger Was '100% Real'

Comedian Andrew Schulz revealed on the "Flagrant" interview series that he was instructed not to make jokes at Netflix 's Tom Brady roast related to Robert Kraft's 2 in a Florida massage parlor. Charges against Kraft were dropped the following year. When Kraft's attendance was confirmed at the event, roasters were allegedly told endings" in relation to the Patriots owners.

"When Tom checked Jeff Ross, I think that was 100% real," Schulz said. "The reason why I think it's real is because they told us no jokes about happy endings with B ... Tom asked us not to do anything with the massage shit."

Schulz agreed to Brady's alleged demand, mainly because Kraft was not the one getting roasted and he was also not even sitting on the stage. It was fellow roaster J massage joke during the live event, which infamously led to Brady getting up from his seat and telling Ross: "Don't say that shit again."

"This is the first comic that goes on!" Schulz said about Ross' Kraft joke. "It's a live roast and it's your night. [Brady] was ready to shut the whole thing down. That's an who basically let him go ... Bob Kraft did not resign him and he still feels that kind of loyalty."

"Most people who get caught up in that moment are like, 'I don't want to ruin [the event],'" Schulz added, noting that most people would not have disrupted the live tap matter. He said to [Kraft] those jokes weren't going to be made and he agreed to come and then you broke the rule."

The day after the Brady roast, Ross appeared on "The Rich Eisen Show" and downplayed that the NFL icon was actually pissed off at him because of the Kraft joke.

"No way," Ross said. "He was having fun. You know, it's like that's his dad. Robert Kraft is like a father figure to him. He was just showing his love for Robert Kraft. An great talk afterwards. He was so happy that I gave him a shoutout and a salute. It was beautiful."

Ross delivered the joke while remembering the famous story of Brady walking into Kraft's office and telling him, "I'm the best decision your organization has ever mad applause, Ross delivered the punchline: "Would you like a massage?"

"Tom loves the roast. He's a student of the roasts," Ross stressed to Rich Eisen. "If you love the roast ... everyone wants to be the center of attention, even when they about him for three hours. After he won the last Super Bowl, I hit him up. I knew he was a roast fan. He was into it right away. We made a deal but then he un-retired . loose and fun. I feel like we won an election or something."

Watch Schulz's full interview on "Flagrance" in the video below.

NFL strips Miami Dolphins of 2023 first-round pick, fines Stephen Ross $1.5M for tampering with Tom Brady, Sean Payton

Google - False Positive (Score 0.50) espn.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

investigator allegations violations concerns evidence fined alleged alleging fines investigators lawsuit k prohibition violated violating

NFL strips Miami Dolphins of 2023 first-round pick, fines Stephen Ross $1. tampering with Tom Brady, Sean Payton - ESPN

MIAMI -- The NFL notified the Miami Dolphins on Tuesday that the team would be stripped of its 2023 first-round pick, among other disciplinary measures, for violatio integrity of the game.

Following a six-month investigation, the league found the Dolphins -- primarily team owner Stephen Ross and vice chairman/limited partner Bruce Beal -- violated the occasions from 2019 to 2022 in conversations with quarterback Tom Brady and the agent for then- New Orleans Saints coach Sean Payton.

The NFL, however, found no evidence that the team intentionally lost games during the 2019 season. In February, former Dolphins coach Brian Flores said in his law: hiring practices that Ross attempted to incentivize him to "tank," or purposely lose games, shortly after he was hired in 2019, with Ross allegedly offering Flores $100, Flores alleged that as the team won games late in the season, Dolphins general manager Chris Grier told him Ross was "mad" that the on-field success was "compro In addition to the first-round pick, the Dolphins also will forfeit their 2024 third-round selection.

Ross, meanwhile, was fined $1.5 million and suspended through Oct. 17, during which time he isn't permitted to be at the Dolphins' facility or represent the team at ar any league meeting before the annual meeting in 2023.

Beal was fined $500,000 and isn't permitted to attend any league meetings for the rest of the 2022 season.

Brady will not incur any punishment for the Dolphins' tampering, NFL league spokesperson Brian McCarthy told ESPN's Jenna Laine.

Beal spearheaded impermissible communications with Brady, then the New England Patriots' quarterback, while he was still under contract; Ross and other Dolphins content of those conversations.

Both Ross and Beal tampered with Brady once again following the 2021 season, when he was under contract with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. This time, however, joining the team as a limited partner and possibly a football executive -- although the possibility of him playing for the team was discussed, according to the league's ir Finally, in January 2022, the NFL found that the Dolphins had "impermissible communications" with agent Don Yee -- who represents both Brady and Payton -- about head coach. The league found that the Dolphins "did not seek consent" from the Saints to begin these talks and that they occurred before Payton retired later that mo NFL commissioner Roger Goodell called the league's findings "unprecedented."

"The investigators found tampering violations of unprecedented scope and severity," Goodell said in a statement. "I know of no prior instance of a team violating the p head coach and star player, to the potential detriment of multiple other clubs, over a period of several years. Similarly, I know of no prior instance in which ownership v violations."

Flores said in a statement that he was disappointed that Ross "will avoid any meaningful consequence" with Tuesday's discipline.

"I am thankful that the NFL's investigator found my factual allegations against Stephen Ross are true. At the same time, I am disappointed to learn that the investigat pressure to tank games especially when I wrote and submitted a letter at the time to Dolphins executives documenting my serious concerns regarding this subject at i in her possession," he said. "While the investigator found that the Dolphins had engaged in impermissible tampering of 'unprecedented scope and severity,' Mr. Ross consequence. There is nothing more important when it comes to the game of football itself than the integrity of the game. When the integrity of the game is called into suffers."

While it found no evidence the Dolphins tried to tank in 2019, the investigation did find that Ross made comments to team president and CEO Tom Garfinkel, Grier, se Shore and Flores that the team's draft position should take priority over winning games. When Flores expressed his concerns in writing, he was assured that everyon culture in Miami," and Ross never again made those comments to Flores.

"The independent investigation cleared our organization on any issues relating to tanking and all of Brian Flores' other allegations. As I have said all along, these alle defamatory, and this issue is now put to rest," Ross said in a statement. "With regards to tampering, I strongly disagree with the conclusions and the punishment. How because the most important thing us that there be no distractions for our team as we begin an exciting and winning season. I will not allow anything to get in the way c The investigation also found that Ross' offer of $100,000 for every loss, of which there were "differing recollections about the wording, timing, and context ... was not i offer, nor was the subject pursued in any respect by Mr. Ross or anyone else at the club."

"Every club is expected to make a good faith effort to win every game," Goodell's statement read. "The integrity of the game, and public confidence in professional foc or senior executive must understand the weight that his or her words carry, and the risk that a comment will be taken seriously and acted upon, even if that is not the i in jest and not intended to be taken seriously, comments suggesting that draft position is more important than winning can be misunderstood and carry with them an u integrity of the game. The comments made by Mr. Ross did not affect Coach Flores' commitment to win and the Dolphins competed to win every game. Coach Flores allowing any comment about the relative importance of draft position to affect his commitment to win throughout the season."

The Dolphins were one of five teams that had multiple first-round selections in the 2023 draft before Tuesday's discipline. Miami had acquired the additional first-round 49ers in the trade that allowed the Niners to select Trey Lance third overall last year.

On Wednesday, when asked if it bothers him another team was talking to Brady, Buccaneers coach Todd Bowles said, "It doesn't bother me. There's just not a lot goi not making it any bigger than it is."

Official explains unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on Tom Brady: 'He got in my face ... and used abusive language'

Google · False Positive (Score 0.45) nfl.com

Reviewed by on June 11, 2024

penalty abusive aggressive officials protected shot official

Official explains unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on Tom Brady: 'He got in my face ... and used abusive language'

Tom Brady won't be playing in another Super Bowl in February, and the end of his 22nd professional season didn't arrive without frustration.

Brady was under duress frequently during Sunday's 30-27 loss to the Los Angeles Rams, taking three sacks and ending up on the receiving end of contact on more th his upper chest area delivered by Von Miller early in the second quarter left Brady with a bloody lip, and a bone to pick with the game's officials.

Brady turned toward referee Shawn Hochuli to voice his displeasure with a lack of a roughing the passer after being hit by Miller, drawing a flag -- just not for the reas Brady was penalized for unsportsmanlike conduct for the first time in his career. Hochuli explained the flag after the game.

"He got in my face in an aggressive manner and used abusive language," Hochuli said, via the pool report. "As for the hit, we did not think that it rose to the level of ro Brady was knocked back a step or two, but didn't come close to falling down as a result of the contact. That didn't keep him from giving Hochuli an earful, and the refe Brady has certainly been protected by adjustments to rules intended to limit contact on quarterbacks during his career, with one being created to eliminate the cause c suffered by Brady in 2008. The NFL is well aware of the importance of quarterbacks and has reacted accordingly, but a bloody lip and minor contact to the facemask i flag -- no matter how fiercely Brady states his case.penalty

Tom Brady pushed FTX, then the crypto firm failed. Should he pay ...

December 14, 2022 · Google · False Positive washingtonpost.com

conspiracy convicted money laundering

Tom Brady pushed FTX, then the crypto firm failed. Should he pay ...

FTX Committed No Crime Paying Tom Brady And Others Millions ...

Google · False Positive forbes.com

FTX Committed No Crime Paying Tom Brady And Others Millions ...

Oct 4, 2023 ... Tom Brady—as Bankman-Frieds attorney legal team ... Tom Brady became an ... Bankman-Fried is being tried for seven criminal counts, including c

Tom Brady, Steph Curry under investigation in Texas for FTX ...

November 22, 2022 · Google · False Positive thehill.com

violations

Tom Brady, Steph Curry under investigation in Texas for FTX ...

Nov 22, 2022 ... Famed NFL quarterback Tom Brady and NBA star Steph Curry are among a group of celebrities under investigation by a Texas regulator for possible

Appendix - search request details

Google API

Entity ID	Type	Name	Year of birth	Citizenship	Reside
—	Individual	Tom Brady	1977	United States	—, Un

High-risk countries

Russian Federation NK

Keywords

ACCUSE ARREST BRIBE CONVICT CORRUPT COUNTERFEIT CRIME EMBEZZLEMENT FRAUD GUILT INVESTIGATION KICKBACK MONEY LAUNDERING NARCOTIC PENALTY SANCTION SENTENCED EVASION TEI TRAFFICKING VIOLATION

Article Language(s)

Any

Search time period

10 Years

Report Explanation

Case Status: the recommendation based on the analyst's findings. Possible values are Further investigation needed, True positive or False Positive. The name.

High-Risk Countries: shows flagged countries which were found within the article(s). Note that additional countries that were not found within the article screening.

Keywords: shows keywords found within the article(s) that are commonly associated with a True Positive alert. Note that additional keywords that were not may have been used in the screening.

Article Title: the name of the article returned by the search parameters. Clicking the name of the article title in the Summary section will navigate you to the article details section.

Article Status: a risk-based category assigned to an article. Possible values are "Needs Investigation", "False Positive", "True Positive". Articles that were "Positive" by the model are automatically assigned "Needs Investigation" unless a human team member changes the status during the review process.

Score: a model-based assessment that determines the relevance of the entity and a risky activity and/or crime. It is given on a 0.00 to 1.00 scale, with 1.00 being the highest.

Reviewer: the name and ID of the final analyst who reviewed the article and updated its status and/or comment. Possible values are the name and ID of the analyst or "Auto" if it was processed automatically by the digital worker Evelyn. It is possible for different articles to be reviewed by different analysts within the same case.

Comment: articles are first analyzed by the machine learning model. If the model dispositioned the article as False Positive, you'll see the reasoning list and any comments made by analysts during their manual review in this section.